Head of Laboratory Diagnostics & Ultrasound, Siemens Healthineers, Vietnam Nguyen Quoc Thinh hands over the ACUSON S3000 Ultrasound System to Director of Ho Chi Minh Tropical Diseases Hospital Dr. Nguyen Van Vinh Chau on April 20, 2020

“The coronavirus (SARS-CoV-2) pandemic continues to spread rapidly, confronting healthcare professionals around the world with unprecedented clinical and operational challenges. Siemens Healthineers is aware of the urgency and complexity of the current situation in Vietnam and is privileged to support Ho Chi Minh Tropical Diseases Hospital that is playing a significant important role in diagnosing and providing treatment to the COVID-19 affected patients”, mentioned Pedro Vilaca, Country Head, Siemens Healthineers, Vietnam

To contain, manage and also reduce occurrences of outbreaks, hospitals need sufficient and suitable medical resources, especially high quality and efficient diagnostics equipment. As hospital's trusted partner, Siemens Healthineers is pleased to join hands with Ho Chi Minh Tropical Diseases Hospital to fight against this pandemic by donating the ACUSON S3000 Ultrasound System to hospital.

“With the ACUSON S3000, we believe our advanced ultrasound system will help improve the efficiency and accuracy of cases examined and help your medical professionals deliver the best possible and timely care to the patients, while reducing the workload on the staff.” said Nguyen Quoc Thinh, Country Head Laboratory Diagnostics & Ultrasound of Siemens Healthineers Vietnam.

Director of Ho Chi Minh Tropical Diseases Hospital Dr Nguyen Van Vinh Chau expressed thanks to Siemens Healthineers for the support, which he said is a great source of encouragement for hospital to overcome the current difficult time.
